With F.M.L.

I've been in Texas since 1956. A number of books and a movie developed from one of them, "Giant" by Edna Ferber, have been substantiated, in part, by this enormous state.

A lot of it is mythology; a lot of it is true. But somehow the size of everything in Texas has convinced some of the natives, not all of them, that everything is outsize here. It apparently convinced Lyndon Johnson.

I think it tends to put blinders on us. It tends to give us tunnel vision, with the light at the end of the tunnel showing through in the outline of the Lone Star State.

There is a lot of amazing things in this world, and part of them are in Texas. But we are second in state size, now that Alaska has statehood. We are first in oil, but losing to the Middle East due to a diminishing resource. We are first in several agricultural commodities, one, cotton for example, which has lost its grip in this country because of synthetics and slow response to research, now quicken.

Cattle in Texas remain first nationally, and feeding cattle is coming to first status one of these days when vast Texas technic in this field surpasses the capacity in Kansas and Nebraska.

Texas gave the nation "Remember the Alamo." The Greeks had a battle cry after the Spartans were massacred at Thermopylae. These bombs gave us "Remember Harbor." And there are probably other vocal shrines to heroism.

One of the dangers of enshrining things past or heroes past is establishing a myth that new things or new people cannot measure up, that only mists of history yield up value.

But as fast as things change now, Texas myth and reality tend to run together, losing value for things present by standards past.

Sen. Bentsen Raps Failing Mail Service

WASHINGTON, D.C.

Senator Lloyd Bentsen Monday said a public admission by the postmaster general, that mail service has "deteriorated seriously" in recent weeks was a "refreshing bit of candor."

But Bentsen, awaiting results of a General Accounting Office investigation he ordered into mail delivery in Texas, added "I'm afraid this moment of candor will be lost in the fog of postal service propaganda with which we are constantly bombarded."

"The mass media are filled with so-called public service announcements, telling us what a great job the postal service is doing."

"We hear reports that the postal service spent almost $300,000 on mailings to businessmen, trying to persuade them to use air mail," Bentsen added.

Senator Bentsen said he continues to receive disturbing reports from Texas about deterioration of mail service. He cited one instance in which a public service announcement from the postal service mailed to a Texas radio station for use on January 4, did not arrive until January 6.

"And I constantly receive complaints from our dedicated postal workers, and from others, regarding horror stories of managerial ineptness and confusion within the postal operation," he said.

As an example, he pointed out the recent revelation by Congressional investigators that the postal service plans to scrap most of an estimated $18 million worth of equipment at a processing center in Kearny, New Jersey when it opens a new facility in nearby Secaucus, N. J. next summer. The Kearny plant which opened only last July, will become a sorting and distributing center.

Postmaster General Elmer T. Klassen was quoted publicly last week as admitting that mail delivery deteriorated seriously during December and January.

Bentsen said the admission is a step in the right direction, but added "I hope it's not too little and too late."

Irish Political Scene Lit By Talk Agreement Between Leaders

By Richard Norsworthy

BELFAST

A surprise move for talks between Protestant and Catholic leaders with diametrically opposing views on the future of Northern Ireland has set the tangled political scene alight here.

There is still no talk of a political breakthrough following a decision by hard-line Protestant leaders traditionally loyal to the British crown to meet Catholic politicians dedicated to a united Ireland.

But the planned meeting, which caught most people unawares, has strengthened speculation that Northern Irish leaders are more aware than ever of the futility of violence in achieving a peaceful solution to sectarian strife.

The first sign that something might be up came when William Craig, chairman of the Protestant Ulster Loyalist Council (U.L.C.) which groups political as well as armed para-military units, told a rally on Monday that Catholics and Protestants must stop feuding and unite for an independent state or face all-out civil war.

A day or two later it was disclosed that Craig had met Catholic politicians at a social gathering and had floated the idea of an independent Northern Ireland.

On Thursday, the Catholic Social and Democratic Labor Party (SDLP) said it would meet with Craig to discuss his proposals. Craig said he would consult his colleagues with the aim of an early meeting.

The get-together has been welcomed cautiously on both sides.

But the violent provisional wing of the Irish Republican Army, which seeks a united Ireland by any means, has scorned the proposals. And the Protestant Ulster Defense Association (UDA) which is part of the ULC and has declared war on the IRA, is known to be unhappy about Craig's speech.

Events leading up to this latest development began last week when ULC called a 24-hour strike in protest against the detention without trial of two suspected Protestant extremists. People who tried to work were threatened by Protestant gangs or by men in paramilitary uniforms.

The day ended in riots, fires, bombings and gun battles with British troops. Soldiers killed three Protestant gunmen and a fireman was shot to death while fighting a fire.

The orgy of violence outraged most Protestants and led to former Prime Minister Brian Faulkner calling on the leaders of the three other parties dedicated to maintaining the provinces links with Britain to seek an early meeting with William Whitelaw, the government's administrator in Northern Ireland.

They told Whitelaw they would accept any measures he saw fit to use to end the violence.

The majority of moderate Protestants fell in behind Faulkner, leader of the Unionist Party, which controlled the Protestant dominated provisional parliament before it was suspended by the British government. There was widespread condemnation of the strike and its consequences and the U.L.C. felt that Faulkner was taking advantage of this to grab the spotlight away from the hardliners.

Then came Craig's speech on Monday night urging Catholics and Protestants to unite and observers saw this as another move in the political chess game to win the support of the moderates.

One experienced political observer said "While all these appeals may be simple vote-getting tactics, it proves that we have known all along and what these politicians are just beginning to find out - that the majority of the people want peace."

But, he added, "It is still the men and women on both sides with the guns and the bombs who can keep the sectarian communities apart by continuing the violence. And these are the people who are not interested in talking. They are interested in killings."

Two Countians Appointed For Alcohol Plan

Mrs. Don Humble of Cameron and Harold Staffebach of Rockdale have been appointed by the Central Texas Council on Alcoholism to represent Milam County in planning, designing and writing the Regional portion of the Texas State Plan for Prevention, Treatment, and Control of Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism.

The up-dating and revision of the State Plan will involve public hearings, task group meetings and planning committee meetings.

The delegates from Milam County will be responsible for bringing information and needs of the county to be included in the State Plan.

Schools Week Coming Up

PLANNING COMMISSION - Part of the Annual Arrangements Program Planning Commission, the Schools and Parks Committee, meets in the Chamber office with A. W. McCullin, chairman of the Commission. From left are Alvin Hefft, Irving Bornfeld, Odell Biggs, Mrs. Lois Hill, secretary Regina Young, McCullin, and in foreground, Dana Kestenbaum. Meeting with the group but not shown were Miss Mildred Thornton and James Camp.

Open House, Science Fair For PS Week

School leaders all over the state are sponsoring the celebration of Public Schools Week which has traditionally been set as the first full week in March. This year it will be observed from March 5 through 9.

In Milam County, schools are preparing for open houses, classroom visitation, and other special events to mark the week.

Cameron schools are planning an open house set for Thursday night from 7 to 9. Classrooms will be open at Ben Milam, Ada Henderson, Yoe High, and Cameron Junior High for parents to visit. Teachers will be in the classrooms to welcome visitors.

The open house is set in conjunction with the Yoe High Science Fair, with judging of entries Thursday afternoon and results of judging shown Thursday evening. The science fair is an annual event of Public Schools Week.

BUCKHOLTS

Parents and friends of the Buckholts schools may visit anytime during the school day, eat lunch with the children, ask questions about the function of the system, and make suggestions.

Parents are asked to notify the school by 9 a.m. on the day they wish to eat in the lunchroom. Meals will be 50 cents for adults.

On Friday, March 2, the Outsiders basketball team from Buckholts will play the KTEM radio station team from Temple in Buckholts gym at 7:30 p.m.

Tickets are 50 cents for adults and 25 cents for students. All proceeds will go to the glass backboard fund.

ROGERS

Rogers has also set an open house Thursday night to follow the March PTA meeting which will start at 7:30. Parents and friends are invited to visit classrooms and meet teachers.

The PTA is planning a special coffee and luncheon for faculty members on Tuesday.

The program Thursday night at the PTA meeting will be a panel discussion with elected officials of Rogers on the panel, including the mayor and commissioner and others. Topic will be "What we can do to make a better community."

THORNDALE

Special displays of students' work will be a highlight of Public Schools Week at Thorndale, with elementary displays in classrooms and high school displays in the cafeteria.

Parents and friends are invited to visit classrooms any day of next week, and are asked to send word if they plan to eat in the lunchroom.

The student council will register guests for grades 7 through 12 at the high school. The Thorndale PTA will have a special meeting Thursday night.

MILANO

There will be open house at the Milano junior and senior high school Thursday, March 8 from 7 until 9 p.m.

On Friday, open house will be held all day at the elementary school. All parents are invited to visit on either or both of the days.

Faculty, Boosters To Play Benefit

Yoe High faculty members and Booster Club members will play the senior class in a benefit basketball game Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in Yoe Gym.

Tickets are $1 for adults and 50 cents for students.

Plans Underway For Annual Arrangements

Plans are moving along swiftly for the city's participation in the new federal Annual Arrangements Program, for which the city, among 129 others, is now eligible.

A comprehensive plan is being drawn up by the city's Planning Commission, appointed especially for the job, which must be approved by the Central Texas Council of Governments and be sent to Housing and Urban Development (HUD) by March 15.

The plan will be for improvements which can be undertaken during the first year of the five-year program, according to A. W. McCullin, chairman of the Planning Commission.

Committees have been formed in the commission on schools and parks, streets, housing, fire protection and water and sewer. The committees have been meeting or having public meetings to help draw up the plan.

Monday afternoon the schools and parks committee met and offered its plan for future parks and playgrounds to be financed by the program.

Areas under discussion include the area around Cameron Junior High, near Yoe High, Newton's Lake area, and improvements to Wilson-Ledbetter Park.

It was noted that an application is being made through Texas Parks and Wildlife for the Ledbetter Park plan, which could be augmented by the Annual Arrangements Program. McCullin reviewed the plans drawn up by other committees:

Streets - pick up paving of downtown streets from the urban renewal project area. This includes Fannin, Central, Houston and Crockett.

Housing - number one priority will be to remove uninhabited dilapidated buildings of which there are some 375 in Cameron, clearing off lots for future home building.

Fire protection - the Allen Addition back of the Milam Motel has no fire protection now, and has only a 4" water line. Plan is to install an 8" water line and fireplugs.

Sewer - to install sewer lines in a section of West Cameron near the fiesta grounds which now has no sewer service at all. A petition from residents asking for the utility has already been filed at City Hall, McCullin noted.

McCullin also said funds would be earmarked if possible for providing some sort of building for the county's junior livestock growers for their annual shows.

There was also some discussion of including a municipal building in future plans.

Junior High Tracksters To Star Saturday

The third annual Cameron Lions Club invitational junior high track meet will be held Saturday, March 3 at Yoe Field, according to Max Morgan, junior high coach.

Participating teams include Mexico, St. Mary's, Hearne, Fairway, Belton, Bremond, Marlin, Taylor, Navasota, Madisonville, Copperas Cove, Georgetown, Rockdale, Rosebud-Lott, and Cameron.

Field events will start at 10 a.m., and will include pole vault, broad jump, high jump, discus, shot put, and pull-ups.

Preliminary running events begin at 11 a.m.: 440 relay, 440 yard dash, 60 yard high hurdles, 880 relay, 100 yard dash, 100 yard low hurdles, and 220 yard dash.

Finals get underway at 4 p.m.

with 440 relay, 440 yard dash, 60 yard high hurdles, 880 relay, 880 yard dash, 100 yard dash, 220 yard dash, 1320 yard run, and 1320 relay.

Morgan will direct the meet and Ed Cauley will be referee. Starter will be Jack Chubb and John Parker will assist him. Gene Smitherman will be announcer; Bill Huffman and Bob Nance will be in charge of heat and lane and Max Shuemate will be clerk and finish judge.

Gause Men Face 'Pot' Charges

Two Gause men were arrested and charged in Justice of the Peace Jess Brock's Court Saturday morning for possession of marijuana.

They were Chester Lee Howard and Lewis Allen Thompson.

They were arrested by George W. Ellington, highway patrolman from Hearne, on a dirt road near Gause.

What Would George Do?

If George Washington were alive today, what would he do?

Things are rather similar to the problems following the end of the revolution. The U. S. has just finished a war, though foreign, long, drawn out, costly and bloody. Where do we go from here?

The young have little to rebel against, since the war was a prime issue. The far left has been disenfranchised by a lack of supplement to Vietnam.

The country can worry about economics and internal city problems for the first time in more than a decade without outside war skirmishes. Did you know, for example, that import of heroin and subsequent use in major Eastern cities is turning downward, the first time since the 1960s?

George came from the country, Mount Vernon in Virginia, to New York City, where he was sworn in as president. The country had little or no currency, no resources except the pluck and skill of the colonials and the vastness of the West.

A Bit Buck Rogerish?

We note the Texas House is using cathode ray tubes for transmitting legislative information to House members.

This is a sign of the times, like the appointment of a Texas Constitution commission, which begins a study of what is needed in a new constitution prior to meeting of the Texas House of Representatives as constitutional convention in 1974.

Things are aching in Austin, not only in legislation instituting reform and greater support for newspaper and electronic news coverage.

So many bills are introduced in a session of a

What did George do? He put together a currency, a government (forewearing a kingship), and laid out Washington on the Potomac River.

What would he do now? Much the same. He would stabilize inflation at home and the American dollar abroad. He would build anew where he could and go westward, this day probably southwestward, for new expansion and growth. He would urge the citizenry now to ply the same vigor and courage, to peacetime pursuits shown in the only revolution in Western history resulting in constitutional stability.

He would urge fighting the peace, a much harder battle than fighting the war. He would soon cause coining of the phrase "let George do it." He would soon urge that every man be named George, not in his honor, but so that George by golly could do it.

George would say "let's get on with the building." And he'd be right, of course. There's always some fool to tear things down.

modern state legislature, about 3,000 last term, perhaps 4,500 this 1973 - 74 term, that legislators need electronic devices just to call up information.

Decisions, like computer input, are still human decisions. But they are better supplemented by data processing and control when so much stuff is in the mill and so much is at stake.

Texas Legislature, including House and Senate, are rated about 35th in the nation in terms of modern government. Cathode ray tubes are a means to bring that in line with the status of Texas by other measures, even if they seem a bit Buck Rogerish.

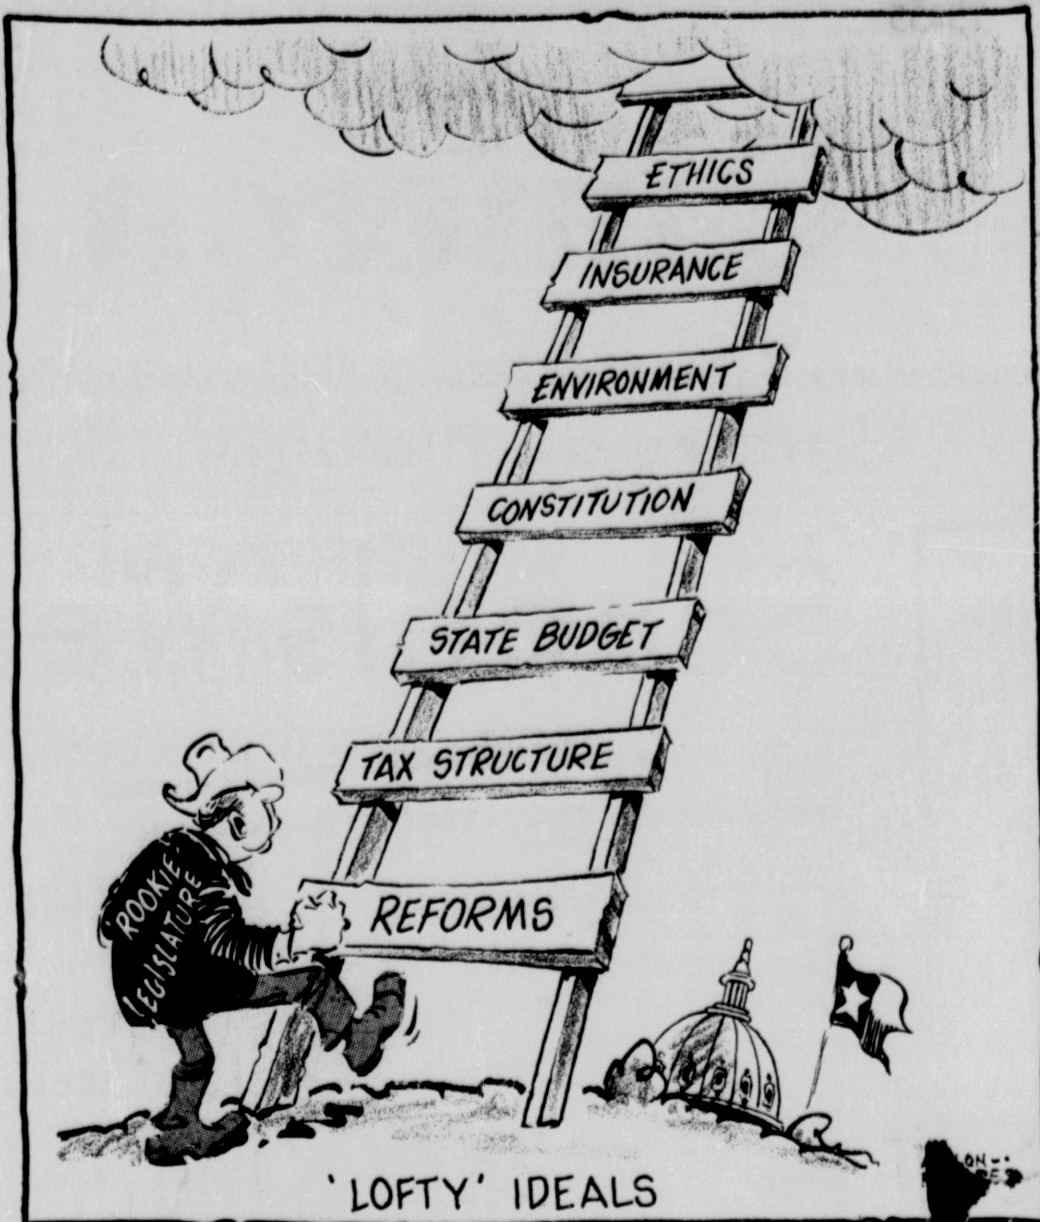

to blame for the accident in the first place? Not at all. It is what happens afterward that counts. Nor is it an excuse that you "thought it was nothing serious." Once you have hit someone, it is your duty to get the facts before going on.

On the other hand, you are not guilty if you were truly unaware of the accident. In one case, a nighttime hit-and-run accident was traced to the owner of a station wagon. Telltale bloodstains and threads from the victim's clothing were found on his right front tire.

Yet, the man swore in court that he had known nothing about it until the police came to his house. His driving after the accident had been perfectly normal, with no sign of a guilty conscience. Nor had he made any effort to remove the incriminating evidence from his tire.

A court decided that he was indeed telling the truth. Finding him not guilty, the court said: "Knowledge is an essential element of the crime."

Wholesale Price Index Rises During January

WASHINGTON

The Wholesale Price Index for all commodities rose 1.3 percent from December 1972 to January 1973, largely because of substantial increases for agricultural products, the U. S. Department of Labor's Bureau of Labor Statistics reports.

Prices of farm products and processed foods and feeds advanced 3.3 percent. Industrial commodities increased 0.5 percent. Consumer finished goods, a selection of food and non-food commodities closely comparable with those in the commodity component of the Consumer Price Index, were up 1.6 percent.

Of the 15 major commodity groups measured by the Wholesale Price Index, 14 advanced from December to January and one declined.

In January 1973, the All Commodities WPI was 124.5 (1967-100), 7.1 percent above a year earlier; the industrial commodities index was 3.5 percent higher than January 1972.

On a seasonally adjusted basis, the All Commodities Wholesale Price Index rose 1.1 percent in January. Farm products and processed foods and feeds advanced 2.9 percent. Industrial commodities increased 0.3 percent. Consumer finished goods were up 1.4 percent.

In the 6-month period ended in January, the All Commodities Wholesale Price Index rose at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 8.9 percent. Prices in the last 3 months of the period rose more than in the first 3 months, reflecting an unusual climb in prices of farm products and processed foods and feeds in December and January, together with a faster pace for industrial commodities.

During the 6 months ended in January, the index for farm products and processed foods and feeds advanced at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 26.2 percent. In the last 3 months of the period the annual rate was 45.1 percent compared with 9.8 percent for the first 3 months. The industrial commodities index rose at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 2.8 percent in the August-January period.

Within this 6-month period, the annual rate of increase was 1.9 percent in the 3 months ended in October and 3.7 percent in the 3 months ended in January.

The consumer finished goods index rose at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 7.7 percent in the six months ended in January.

The index increased at a higher rate in the last 3 months ended in January.

The index increased at a higher rate in the last 3 months of the period (12.8 percent) than in the first 3 months (2.8 percent), principally reflecting the climb in food priced in recent months.

The WPI rose at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 7.0 percent during the 14 months of Phase II that ended in January. (Most prices for the January WPI were obtained while Phase II of the Economic Stabilization Program was still in effect.) This compares with a rise at a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 5.2 percent in the 8 months of 1971 prior to the price-wage freeze that began in August.

Australia To Form New City

SYDNEY

Australia has launched an ambitious project to form a new city of 300,000 people, the country's first planned inland city since the founding of Canberra half a century ago.

Site for the new city is the twin towns of Albury and Wodonga, which straddle the Murray River at the road and railway crossing on the main highway between Sydney and Melbourne.

The project will merge the two towns, which at present have a combined population of 43,000, to form the second biggest inland city, after fast growing Canberra, with a planned population of 300,000 by the end of the century.

The Murray River divides the states of Victoria and New South Wales at Albury-Wodonga. The decision to launch the plan was taken at a meeting recently between government leaders of the two states and the new prime minister, Gough Whitlam.

Total cost of the project has not yet been calculated. Australians have traditionally clung to the narrow coastal belt, particularly the eastern seaboard of their three million square mile island continent.

So reluctant have they been to move into their fabled "outback," that at the latest census more than eight million of a total population of 13 million lived in the six state capitals, 5,500,000 in Sydney and Melbourne alone.

In the past, Australian Governments have been reluctant to go in for decentralization on a large scale. Only small state government schemes - chiefly financial incentives for those already living in small country towns not to leave - have been initiated.

Despite these schemes, the drift to the cities has continued, particularly since financial slumps in recent years have made small-scale farming uneconomic and has placed a heavy burden on the provision of essential city services.

Whitlam's Labor Party, which came to power last December, was pledged to a policy of massive decentralization.

As far back as 1968, the Labor Party had promised the construction of "another Canberra" - the artificially planned national capital with a current population of 160,000, between Sydney and Melbourne.

Albury-Wodonga was the natural choice.

Finance for the new city, which lies at the heart of rich farming country, will be provided by direct federal grants and special state loans for development.

At the meeting between Whitlam and the leaders of the two states, it was decided to establish a joint development corporation

OLD PHILOSOPHER

Dear editor:
I had planned to explain the devaluation of the dollar this week as it relates to the world monetary situation but gave it up on the grounds that the more you explain money the less you come away informed about it, although I'll admit I can't understand what all the current-to-do is about.

Why all the headlines and excitement about President Nixon's reducing the value of the dollar by 10 percent? The stores I trade at were way ahead of the President. They reduced it 10 percent five years ago, then reduced it 10 percent more, then 10 percent more, to where today a 10-cent tractor bolt now costs 30 cents, 50 cents worth of round steak costs $1.25, and price of a 3-minute visit to a doctor's office has quadrupled.

Actually, I don't know what the value of money is based on. It used to be based on gold, but now I think it's based on whatever theory the economist you happen to be talking to thinks it is.

Speaking of gold, even inflation has hit that and a report I read yesterday said its price has gone up again. In fact, it looks like if gold keeps going up it's going to be as high as meat.

But I don't want to single out just meat. Everything is in on this, and I understand some housewives always try to do their grocery shopping the first thing in the mornings because they figure most items will go up by mid-afternoon.

This of course doesn't apply to getting sick. If you're figuring on a long stay in the hospital, one time is as good as another. It's going to break you anyway.

Remember though the other side to all this is that nobody wants to go back to working for 50 cents an hour, and some of us don't even want to go back to working.

Yours faithfully,
J. A.

"Low Down" FROM THE Congressional Record

By JOE CRUMP

(A Column for Readers Who Haven't Time to Review the Congressional Record Daily)

REP. GLENN M. ANDERSON, (Calif.)... According to the Department of Agriculture, a group of businessmen in Venezuela is planning to commercially raise cats, slaughter them, and then export the skins and other products to the United States for sale.

"In addition to the skins, which reportedly will bring 50 cents each in the United States, these people plan to sell the gut for sutures and strings for musical instruments and to market the feet for good-luck charms.

"The cat's carcasses will then be fed to mice, which in turn will be fed to the cats."

"This is not an isolated case. A South African businessman announced a plan to raise dogs for importation of dog skins into the United States. However, the publicity led the South African Government to amend its Animal Protection Act to specifically prohibit the slaughter of domestic dogs for financial gain.

"HOWEVER, EXISTING U. S. LAWS AND REGULATIONS WOULD NOT STOP THIS OPERATION.

"This utter disregard for domestic cats and dogs must be challenged by the Congress, and the factory-farming of cats and dogs for pelts - merely to satisfy human vanity - must be halted.

"For this reason, I introduced H.R. 3347, the DOMESTIC DOG AND CAT PROTECTION ACT, which would prohibit the importation of domestic dog and cat products into the United States. In addition this proposal would prevent the interstate shipment of factory-produced domestic dog and cat pelts, and other products for which the animals were slaughtered.

CRUMP'S COMMENT

This column will make very poor reading for cat and dog lovers. However, burying the information in the Congressional Record would serve no useful purpose. A telephone call to a branch of the American Humane Society disclosed that they were unaware of the cat, dog slaughter program. They know it now.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Panic at the Wheel

Russell's first reaction, when his car knocked down a pedestrian, was panic. He drove to a nearby gas station and cried: "There's an injured man back there in the street."

Then he sped home to hide. It wasn't long, however, before the police tracked him down and placed him under arrest on a charge of hit-and-run driving.

At the trial, Russell protested that panic "can happen to anyone." Also, he reminded the court that he had at least made some effort to get help to the victim.

Nevertheless, he was found guilty of the charge. In spite of extenuating circumstances, said the court, he had committed precisely the act forbidden by statute.

This case illustrates the law's stern attitude toward the hit-and-run driver. Although panic is understandable, it is not forgivable.

If you are involved in an accident, you must stop, identify yourself, and—in most states—give reasonable aid to anyone who is injured. Does it matter if you were not

Ocean Search Gets Navy Job

Aluminum Company of America, with its biggest domestic refinery and smelter at Point Comfort and Rockdale, Texas, respectively, has received a one-year contract from the U.S. Navy to provide worldwide ocean recovery, salvage and related engineering services to the Navy and other federal government agencies. The contract was awarded to Ocean Search, Inc., of Washington, D. C. an Alcoa subsidiary.

Formed in 1968 to develop deep-ocean search, recovery and engineering technology, Ocean Search owns and operates Alcoa Seaprobe, a 243-foot all-aluminum research vessel with advanced deep-ocean work capabilities.

"The team we've assembled to service this contract represents the finest operational and managerial capability existing today in the field of ocean search and recovery," a company spokesman said.

"It includes people who have been involved in more than 80 significant search and recovery operations conducted by the Navy's supervisor of salvage during the past seven years, including the recovery in 1966 of an H-bomb off the coast of Spain."

Under the contract, the Alcoa subsidiary will provide program management and direction as required for a potentially broad range of ocean engineering and operating endeavor.

Past operations conducted under similar contract have included the search for the submarine Scorpion, recovery of the submersible Alvin and a NASA satellite off the coast of California, and ordnance retrieval from water depths of approximately 6,000 feet. Vietnam and Greenland also have been sites of previous contract operations.

The company spokesman said such operations require the use of sophisticated devices ranging from side scan sonars and precision navigational systems to small submersibles, remotely operated manipulator devices and special-purpose vessels such as Alcoa Seaprobe.

'Dry Rot' Wet

The term "dry rot" is a misnomer. Wood must be wet to decay. Wood flooring 5,000 years old has been found intact in an Egyptian tomb. It seldom or never became wet; hence fungi never had a chance.

COUNTY AGENT'S NOTES

Fertilizer Vital To Grain Crop

By Bill McCutchen

A large percentage of Milam County's grain sorghum and cotton acreage isn't fertilized as yet and with planting time approaching fast and fields wet, many are wondering what to do.

Let me start by saying that there is no easy answer. The ideal situation is to have the phosphorus fertilizer down in a band a couple of inches below and not over 2-3" to the side of the intended seed placement prior to planting. This year, wet weather has kept most farmers from having this done.

Many farmers are going to want to plant as soon as it is dry and won't take time to fertilize and this may well be the best approach as early planting is very important.

Phosphorus fertilization is the key to the fertilization problem. Nitrogen can be side dressed effectively within 30 days of grain sorghum planting or after cotton planting and good results can be expected.

Phosphorus, however, is another problem. The prime benefit of phosphorus is in early root development and seedling growth. Research has shown that side dressing phosphorus after planting is a questionable practice and generally ineffective. Young roots need to find the phosphorus source quickly.

Side dressing phosphorus after planting would reduce the efficiency and one should not expect results similar to pre-plant applications.

In visiting with Dr. Charlie Welch, Extension Soil Chemist, he said that unless your soil was real deficient in phosphorus don't plan to make a side dress phosphorus application. He said, that in any case a phosphorus application in the middle would be useless as the roots couldn't locate it soon enough to affect the yields.

Welch stated that with soils very short on phosphorus a side dress application might be advisable. If soil tests indicate a medium or above level of phosphorus a side dress application would not be advisable.

The fertilizer situation will be a real problem for the dealers and companies also. With planting dates late people will be wanting to fertilize grasses at the same time that farmers are trying to fertilize crops. The fertilizer industry will be hard pressed to meet this demand.

Stretching Beef Dollar Promoted

AUSTIN

With everyone beefing about the high cost of beef, the Texas Department of Agriculture has come up with some information on how to get the most out of your beef dollar.

"It's all a part of our March and April promotion for beef as well as turkey and onions through the Texas Agricultural Products - TAP - Program," Texas Agriculture Commissioner John C. White said.

Information on how to stretch your beef dollars includes:

1. A beef chart showing the cuts of beef and cooking instructions for the various cuts.

2. A pamphlet "Stretching Your Beef Dollar" is available which goes into detail explaining how to best utilize beef.

This and other information on beef can be obtained free by writing John C. White, Texas Agriculture Commissioner, Texas Department of Agriculture, Box 12847, Austin, Tex. 78711.

The TAP promotion program for beef will include distribution of 16,000 posters relating to beef as well as television and radio spots. Information will also be distributed for the second annual Texas Grain-Fed Beef Cook-Off, a state-wide contest which last year attracted more than 7,000 entries.

Top prize is $500 for the best way to prepare beef, with $200 for each category winner. The contest is divided into three categories: tender cuts, less tender cuts, and variety cuts. Entry blanks may be obtained at local retail food stores or by writing to the Texas Department of Agriculture. Deadline for entry is April 30th.

and Ranchers Advisory Committee. They were attending the second annual statewide leadership conference held Feb. 25-27 in Brownwood.

Farm Bureau Has Conference

The second annual statewide Leadership Conference for young Farmers and Ranchers in Farm Bureau was held Feb. 25-27 at the Riverside Inn in Brownwood.

Representing Milam County Farm Bureau at the meeting were Mr. and Mrs. Carl Grothe of Cameron.

The three-day session was conducted by the TFB Young Farmers and Ranchers Advisory Committee. Purpose of the meeting was to give young farm and ranch couples a better understanding of how they can work to solve agricultural problems in Farm Bureau.

Subjects covered in group sessions included: legislation, commodity and marketing activities, the role of the young farmer and rancher in farm bureau, constitution revision, and motivation. Those attending also saw a 30-minute documentary film, "The Road to Delano," which tells the farm worker's side of the farm labor controversy in California.

Texas Farm Bureau President J. T. (Red) Woodson of Gober welcomed the conferees. Edwin Teeter of Lockney, chairman of the Young Farmers and Ranchers Advisory Committee, presided at the meeting. Orientation was handled by Don Neumann, Waco, TFB assistant field services director.

Speakers at the conference included Mrs. Neal (Carol) Pack, Stinnett, former chairman of the TFB Young Farmers and Ranchers Advisory Committee; Millard Shivers, Dallas, director of rural development, Blue Cross / Blue Shield; and Warren Newberry, Waco, TFB executive director.

TFB staff members conducted the courses in group sessions. They were assisted by Delano Clark, Baton Rouge, La., American Farm Bureau Federation southern region field representative.

Window Dressing

If metal windows seem severe, dress them up by framing them with wood casing or moldings. Either can be cut and applied around interior or exterior edges of windows.

Maysfield

By Mrs. J. P. Wise

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph White and Mr. and Mrs. David White of Dallas visited Mr. and Mrs. Valter White last weekend.

Johnny Yates Jr. arrived Tuesday after being discharged from the army. He and his wife are visiting their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Yates Sr. of Maysfield and Mr. and Mrs. Lewis of Rockdale. They have been stationed in Germany the last eighteen months.

Mrs. W. C. Cooper spent last weekend with her daughter and family the Rev. Frank Newtons of Houston.

Bobby Yates left Sunday for Weatherford where he will do his practice teaching. He will graduate from A&M University this spring.

Mrs. Dock Thweatt, Mrs. Herbert Thweatt and Mrs. Carroll McElwath and son Joey visited Mr. and Mrs. Larry Thweatt and son in Austin Sunday.

Mrs. E. S. Hollingsworth of Smithville and Mrs. Ruby Massengale and Mrs. Fred Cochran of Cameron visited the Roy Newtons Friday afternoon.

TREASURERS MEET

The First Annual County Treasurers Conference will be held at Texas A&M University March 21-22. Theme will be "Better Care for County Funds." The conference will include discussions on county bond issuance, planned program budgeting systems, and general laws governing the treasurer's office, says a specialist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

More Cows, More Milk... Fertilizer Use Increases... Broiler Prices Advance... Citrus Harvest Active.

Texas cows produced almost five tons of milk each during 1972. Total milk production in Texas this past year was up four per cent from a year ago. Total milk production was 3,381,000,000 pounds.

The milk cow population also increased slightly, from 355,000 in 1971 to 358,000 in 1972. Average production per cow in herd, including dry cows, was 9,444 pounds in 1972, up 320 pounds from 1970.

But the nationwide average per cow production was 10,271 pounds. Total milk production throughout the nation during 1972 amounted to 120 billion pounds; this is 1.5 per cent higher than the previous year.

FERTILIZER use in Texas continues to climb. Total amount of fertilizers applied on Texas farmlands during 1972 was up almost 200,000 tons over 1971.

Types of fertilizer are divided into three categories: mixed fertilizer, primary nutrient fertilizer, and secondary and micronutrient fertilizer.

Mixed fertilizer utilized in Texas totaled 1,312,535 tons; this is up 11 per cent from 1971. Primary nutrient fertilizer amounted to 1,200,733 tons, which is six per cent above the 1971 use. Secondary and micronutrient fertilizer applied amounted to 1,100 tons which was down slightly from the 1971 level.

Amounts of fertilizers used in Texas during 1972 include: nitrogen-712,135 tons; phosphate-280, 292 tons; potash-112,045 tons.

Anhydrous ammonia fertilizer accounted for 39 per cent of the nitrogen fertilizer used in 1962; ammonium nitrate accounted for 25 per cent, and ammonium sulfate accounted for 14 per cent while nitrogen solutions accounted for 13 per cent.

Superphosphate made up 20 per cent of the directly applied phosphate materials.

CITRUS harvest continues in the Lower Rio Grande Valley. Harvest of grapefruit is active, and moderate supplies of early and midseason oranges will be available this month.

Condition of citrus trees is good. Recent freezing weather caused little to no damage.

BROILER wholesale prices are jumping at almost unheard of rates. The price recently jumped four cents a pound at the wholesale level, which is perhaps the first time that has ever happened.

Reasons for the price increase include: The high price of red meat is causing consumers to buy more broilers, thus making the law of supply and demand react;

Bad weather in Georgia, a major broiler production area.

As a result, prices to consumers for broilers will be at levels of 20 years ago. Until recently, broilers have for the past several years been several cents per pound less than they were 20 years ago.

Production efficiencies of broiler producers as well as increased feed conversion are among reasons why broilers are at bargain prices.

CATTLE on feed in Texas as of Feb. 1 totaled 2,215,000 head. This is 22 per cent above a year ago, but one per cent below a month ago. Nationwide, cattle on feed in the seven major states was one per cent above a month ago and eight per cent above a year ago.

Devalued Dollar Should Boost Spices, Exports

It's going to cost more to flavor the soup. But agricultural exports should get a boost from the recent devaluation of the U. S. dollar.

That's the opinion of Dr. Roland Smith, grain marketing specialist for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

"The 10 percent dollar devaluation will mean higher prices for certain imported food and fiber products such as spices, vanilla, pepper, coffee, tea, bananas, cocoa, silk and rubber. These changes should be immediately apparent.

"On the other hand the agricultural export situation is difficult to analyze as world money markets are still unsettled. However, the devalued dollar means that U. S. products are now cheaper abroad so we may be able to sell more agricultural commodities in foreign countries," points out Smith.

The specialist contends that any increased export of agricultural commodities will not adversely affect the already tight supply situation on most products. "If foreign sales increase, they will come primarily from products that will be produced this summer and fall. U. S. farmers are increasing plantings this year due to increased demands, and total harvests are expected to reach record levels."

Transportation problems - congested ports and rail car shortages - are presently providing a cushion against any major changes in exports due to the cheaper dollar, notes Smith.

Would an earlier devaluation have boosted export sales even more than those recently consummated?

"Not necessarily," says Smith. "The U. S. was the only country that had sufficient grain supplies to meet the increased demand due to failing crops. Most countries had few alternatives to satisfy their needs."

In the long run, the fact that U. S. products are cheaper abroad may result in increased exports to the extent of causing some price reflection in the domestic market. This will vary from year to year according to the supply of the commodities involved. Typically, products in tight supply situations will be affected more by the dollar devaluation, explains Smith.

Veterinary School Sets Open House

Texas A&M University's College of Veterinary Medicine will have its annual public open house from noon to 5 p.m. Saturday, March 24, Dean A. A. Price announced.

Activities include guided tours, special displays, information centers, movie and a collection of antique veterinary medicine surgical instruments.

Michael C. Gosney, president of the TAMU Student Chapter American Veterinary Medical Association, is organizing the public showing.

Log Cutting Takes Little From Soil

The U.S. forest science laboratory at Corvallis, Or. "finds no drastic or irreversible depletion of forest soil nutrient reserve caused by timber removal," states Dr. C.T. Dyrness, chief soil scientist.

DI-SYSTON gives Texas grower more cotton at less than one-half the cost of another insecticide

Insecticides Tested

The new systemic insecticide, Timek, did not boost cotton yields over the conventional DiSyston, according to results of a trial by Larry Spiegelhauer of Bartlett. Both of these systemic insecticides were applied in the granular form with the seed at planting time at the rate of 7 1/2 pounds per acre.

Spiegelhauer's Timek cotton produced 606 pounds of lint per acre while the DiSyston cotton made 649 pounds of lint per acre. These were field-size plots and the entire fields were harvested to determine the yield. The cost of the Timek treatment was approximately $6.70 per acre while the DiSyston cost about $3 per acre. Spiegelhauer said, "This has been the best cotton year in my 25 years of farming." His average production for the entire farm was 647 pounds of lint per acre. He said, "My problem now is to find a market for the cotton."

Field Day Planned

Bell County Extension Agent... Registered... Field Day... Nov. 4 at the Belton Livestock... have been...

For years *DI-SYSTON systemic insecticide has helped cottonmen save money on insecticide costs and grow better yields. The independent test described in the newspaper clipping on the left compared DI-SYSTON with a new insecticide that has made great claims for yield increases. Read the clipping, and decide for yourself. This is just one example of why DI-SYSTON is still your best early-season insecticide value.

REMEMBER:

DI-SYSTON applied at planting time:

- Protects seedlings from the instant they break through the soil.
- Protection lasts up to 8 weeks.
- Doesn't wipe out beneficial insect populations.
- Helps cotton grow off fast.
- Helps cotton get vigorous early growth that sets heavy bottom crop ahead of mid-season insects.
- Helps produce more early cotton with higher quality.
- Still costs less.

Compare all these advantages then order DI-SYSTON from your dealer...available in liquid and granular formulations.

Couple Wed In Home Ceremony

Miss Peggy Ann Thweatt and Air Force Sgt. Jack Hays were married Saturday, February 24, at the home of the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Bill Thweatt. Rev. Alvis Coleman officiated at the candlelight ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Joy Smith of Fort Worth. Sgt. Hays is the son of Mrs. E. J. Hays of Borger, Texas.

Given in marriage by her uncle, Clyde Childers, the bride wore a floor length gown of white satin with lace trim etched with mother of pearl beads. She carried a colonial bouquet of white carnations.

Honor attendants were Miss Jackie Terhune of Cameron and Rock Thweatt brother of the bride. Tom Thweatt of Lake Jackson, cousin of the bride, was candlelighter.

Silver Candelabra and a bouquet of white and blue carnations and queen's lace centered the serving table for a reception following the ceremony. Assisting in the houseparty were Cookie Langdon, cousin of the bride, Charlotte Pomycal and Jackie Terhune.

Following a wedding trip the couple will make their home at 111 Mirike, Fort Worth.

Recent Bride Honored At Coffee Saturday

Mrs. Drayton McLane honored Mrs. Drayton McLane, Jr. of Temple at a coffee Saturday morning at her home in Cameron.

Greeting guests in the living room were the honoree, Mrs. McLane, and her daughters Mrs. S. W. McClaren III of Grand Prairie and Mrs. Malcom Dimmitt of Houston.

Tall arrangements of pink carnations and babies breath centered the serving table and buffet in the dining room where silver trays held assorted pastries, cocktail sausages, cream filled cannolis and fresh fruit.

Mrs. Amos Hejl of Temple presided at the silver coffee service.

Coffee, tea, pastries and fruit were also served in the family room where serving appointments were of china.

Assisting in the house party were the hostesses sisters, Mrs. A. J. Lewis of Cameron, Mrs. Sam H. McDermott of Texas City, Mrs. Winston Peeler of San Antonio and Mrs. Leonard Blaylock of San Antonio; her nieces Mrs. Ray Slauffaehner and Mrs. Mike Hamm of Houston. Mrs. Bill Crenan of Burlington Miss Mary Margaret Brennan of Austin and Mrs. Scott Weaver of Austin; and her granddaughters Janet McClaren and Katie Dimmitt.

The honoree, the former Elizabeth Cockrell of Belton, and Mr. McLane were married February 2 at the First Baptist Church of Temple. They will make their home in Temple.

Prayer Service Set

Living With Children Imagination Side-Steps Head-On Clashes

COLLEGE STATION
Avoid "head-on" clashes with children by channeling actions. Many problems can be short-circuited if imagination is used and outlets provided for feelings, according to one authority.

"Instead of punishing a child, consider letting him take the consequences instead."

This advice comes from Jane Fleischer, family life education specialist with Texas Agricultural Extension Service, Texas A&M University.

"For example, if he hits another child, going without companionship tells him what his behavior accomplished."

"If he insists on running through mud puddles without boots, staying inside while his shoes dry is more effective than scolding," she contended.

Miss Fleischer was quick to point out that this method isn't always easy on parents.

"It may be quicker, easier and neater to do many things yourself, but the goal is to give the child responsibility for his own behavior."

According to the specialist, six guidelines encourage the "positive" approach to living with children.

--Give commands in line with a child's nature.

"Commands often interfere with a toddler's natural curiosity, exploration, sense of adventure and perpetual motion."

"For example, if the child enjoys getting into drawers, furnish him one of his own. By diverting his behavior through a substitute, reprimands will diminish."

--Consider the child's ability and your expectations.

"Match expectations to his current abilities. After all, it takes time for a toddler to eat without creating some mess."

--Have more "do's" and fewer "don'ts."

"Use the positive approach -- it works wonders with youngsters. Indicate what to do, not what not to."

Instead of "Quit jumping on the sofa this minute," try "Let's see how high you can jump on the floor."

"Once a command has been given, follow it through," Miss Fleischer emphasized. "Otherwise, the child will stop paying attention."

"A reasonable number is beneficial -- at least the child knows where he stands."

"However, limits shouldn't be considered restraints, but channels for normal behavior."

"A youngster needs things he can touch and places he can go, as well as those he shouldn't."

In general, a child can't always control his own impulses. He may vary from great independence at times to clinging dependence.

"Protect him from real harm, but not to the point becomes upset over minor hurts."

"When setting limits, don't tear the child down," Miss Fleischer stressed. "Give love and praise generously."

--Show your love.

Gause News

By Mrs. Wanda Lee

Mrs. Henry Simmons spent several days this past week in Houston with Mr. and Mrs. "Tee Joe" Marks and Traci. Mr. Simmons and Mr. and Mrs. Mike Simmons and daughters of Rockdale joined Mrs. Simmons at the Marks' home for the weekend.

Mrs. Louie (Margie) Lange has been ill. She was to enter a Bryan hospital Sunday to have some tests made.

Miss Sandra Slay of Dallas spent the weekend here with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Slay and sister Cheryl. Mrs. Slay and the girls were in Austin Saturday for Cheryl's dental appointment.

Lance Lee was honored on his 3rd birthday Monday, Feb. 19 with a party.

The children spent the hours playing bingo and outside games. After Lance opened his presents the group sang "happy birthday" and refreshments of cupcakes iced with chocolate and fruit punch was served.

Before leaving the boys were presented party favors of chewing gum and a toy gun and the girls were given chewing gum and rings.

Those attending included, Loretta and Donna Willard, Diana and Jennifer Wilkins, Marshall and Tammy Brown, Ray and Kevin Coats, Dwayne, Lisa and Carmen Cass, Vince Mathews, and Lance's brother Craig and sisters, Kelly and Kristi. Also Mrs. M. D. Brown and Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Cass.

On Monday night Lance was honored at a family get-together supper in the Lee home. After supper birthday cake made in the shape of a rocking horse, and punch was served. Family members attending included Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Albright of Hearne, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Gene Miller and Regina of Milano, Mr. and Mrs. Koye Cass and Ray and Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Cass, Dwayne, Lisa and Carmen of Lexington who spent the night with the Lees.

Mrs. Ira Denman accompanied her daughter, Mrs. W. E. Darwin of Minerva to Ennis last Monday where they attended the funeral of Mrs. Denman's niece and Mrs. Darwin's cousin, Miss Winny Swartz.

Mrs. J. M. Burney celebrated 91st birthday Sunday, February 25. Her daughters and son-in-laws, Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Smith of Hearne, Mr. and Mrs. Sylvan Wilson and Mr. and Mrs. Brown Ely joined her for lunch Sunday. Mrs. Ely baked her mother a beautiful birthday cake. Miss Clara Burney of Rockdale visited Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Burney received many pretty gifts and birthday cards. She also received several phone calls wishing her a happy birthday, one being her son Walter, who was unable to visit the weekend.

Alfred Coats, Ray Cass and Wayne Lee bowled in a tournament at the Cameron Bowling Lanes in Cameron Sunday afternoon.

Easter Seal Appeal Letters Going Out

Easter Seal Appeal letters are to be delivered this week in Milam County according to E. J. Manning, the Easter Seal representative of the Easter Seal Society for Crippled Children and Adults of Texas.

As representative, Manning serves as contact representative for disabled persons needing Easter Seal rehabilitation services and also serves as treasurer of the Easter Seal Appeal in Milam County.

The Easter Seal Society offers physical and occupational therapy, speech and hearing programs, and special equipment loans to enable disabled persons to make the best use of their abilities to overcome handicaps. These services are financed by the annual Easter Seal Appeal.

The Society also provides for research into the causes and cures of crippling conditions, finances public education programs, and provides scholarships for training of professional personnel to staff rehabilitation centers.

Bill Raschke, District Governor from the Austin Lions Club, was guest speaker for Noon Lions when they met Monday.

Raschke complimented the local club on its record of nearly 50 years of organization in Cameron. He said the average life of service clubs is six to nine months.

He noted that Lions International is now nearing one million members. "Sometime this year the million-member will join," Raschke said, "and this is very unusual for a service club."

Raschke said last year the Lions carried out over 50,000 projects and spent more than $2,500,000 on the projects.

Free Consumer Guide Offered To Older Persons

"Buyer beware" has become a popular slogan in recent years, yet most people still buy at full retail prices, during the wrong seasons, and in the wrong places, according to a new "Retiree" published by the American Association of Retired Persons and National Retired Teachers Association.

Offered free as a public service of AARP-NRTA, the Guide notes that recent studies on consumer buying habits reveal that:

- * most supermarket shoppers shop at only one market and about half of them never use a shopping list;
- * charge account customers purchase three times as much as cash customers;
- * failure to read and follow instructions for mechanical goods accounts for about 40 percent of all service calls. To help consumers improve buying skills, the booklet offers money-saving tips on foods, such as meats, eggs and milk, and advises shoppers to compare nationally advertised brands with house brands of most grocery chains. "Many shoppers could save at least $200 a year by buying house brands," the Guide states. The 46-page booklet also includes information about buying new and used automobiles, clothing, mobile homes (retired people purchase 25 percent of them) and borrowing money for these acquisitions. For those troubled with legitimate consumer problems, the Guide details complaint procedures and ways to make complaints most effective.

For instance, the Guide advises that you "keep copies of all documents, sales slips, receipts and correspondence concerning a purchase and have them handy when you talk with persons who sold you unsatisfactory goods or services."

Prepared by AARP-NRTA consumer experts, the booklet is one of a series of "Better Retirement Guides" published by the 4.6 million-member Associations.

If you would like a free copy of the Retirement Consumer Guide, write: Consumer Guide, AARP-NRTA, 1225 Connecticut Ave. N.W., Washington, D. C. 20036.

Bill To Establish Commission

AUSTIN

State Rep. Joe Allen of Baytown believes that his bill to establish the Texas Telephone Commission is gaining support from local city governments across the state. House Bill #27 would create Texas' first such utility commission to act as a rate control board for all telephone franchises in the state.

The bill sets up a 3 man commission, appointed by the Governor, to review a proposed rate increase, at the option of the community involved.

The measure also creates the office of Telephone Consumer Counsel, which will investigate customer complaints of telephone service, and customers questions about phone regulations and charges.

The Counsel will also be available to offer assistance and advice to local communities who are questioning the fairness of phone company practices concerning rates and increases.

Rep. Allen added, "The community officials I have spoken to believe that this bill is the answer to their inability to fight on the same level as phone company. Furthermore, I believe that the state has an obligation to come to the assistance of cities that cannot afford to fight inequitable utility practices on their own. Texas is the only state left which does not have a rate board of some type for this franchise service."

When an aviator encounters a storm, he directs his plane through the clouds and goes higher. In that clear, rare atmosphere he is free from fear and difficulty.

Similarly, when we find ourselves surrounded by clouds of doubt, we need to direct our lives into a higher level where we may free ourselves of weaknesses and seek the will of God.

How can we attain these heights? Through the Church! It offers continuous opportunities for new growth, new life, new understanding. We need not wait for a more convenient time. We can enter into the life of the Church NOW.

Two French Liberals May Be Crucially Placed

By David Lawday

PARIS

Two French liberals with strong traces of the Kennedy style may suddenly find themselves crucially placed during and after general elections next month.

Jean - Jacques Servan-Schreiber, and ambitious magazine publisher with a flair for showmanship, and Jean Lecanuet, the elegant, urbane mayor of Rouen, hold a coveted pitch of middle ground in an election that basically offers Frenchmen a stark choice.

Everything points to a tight finish between the conservative Gaullists and the new Socialist - Communist front.

The center reform movement led by Servan - Schreiber and Lecanuet might then tip the balance if it were to swing either way between the two rounds of voting or afterward -- though ideologically the Gaullists have far better prospects of successfully wooing it.

On the basis of opinion polls some analysts speculate that the liberal reformists will get around 35 seats in the 490 - seat National Assembly with the two giant Rivals taking around 200 each.

So the reformists can already see themselves as chief power brokers in a new era of French political life following 15 years of solid Gaullist rule.

Many parallels have been drawn between the style of the reformist leaders and the glamour which the late John and Robert Kennedy brought to American Politics. But Servan - Schreiber and Lecanuet have a problem: They cannot entirely agree on election strategy.

The one - time socialist Servan - Schreiber, 49, universally known as "JJ-SS" among Frenchmen, has built his political fame on his taste for challenge -- and he sees the enduring Gaullist government as his obvious target.

"My number one priority is the defeat of the government," he declares.

Servan - Schreiber has been the shock trooper of French politics since he veered away from journalism -- he still runs the weekly news magazine Express -- and won election to Parliament in 1970 from Nancy, in Lorraine, a city that had been regarded as a solid stronghold of Gaullism.

The boyish-looking journalist and publisher with the brush-cut hair invaded Nancy with all the vigorous trappings of an American election campaign.

Showing a strong scent for power, he almost immediately became head of a political party by taking over the moribund remains of the once - mighty radical group.

In a country where political campaigns have their own traditional routines, inevitable comparisons were drawn with Robert Kennedy's style of political drive.

Servan - Schreiber underlined the image by hiring a pretty secretary from Bobby Kennedy's old team.

Armed with the Nancy triumph and the reputation he won by his thought - provoking 1967 best - seller "The American Challenge," he took his next spectacular tilt at the Gaullist establishment by attacking Prime Minister Jacques Chaban - Delmas on his own ground in Bordeaux.

What had by then become the "JJ-SS circus" -- a campaign jet, hordes of newspaper correspondents and sophisticated communications set-ups -- moved from Nancy to Bordeaux late in 1970 to see him try to take the prime minister's seat in a by-election.

For Servan - Schreiber the challenge was the thing. It was a chance to put his reform ideas over to the public. In any case, he knew he could not hold two seats in the assembly and he said in advance he would reject the Bordeaux seat if he won it.

In fact he suffered a crushing defeat. But although his radical party has remained a parliamentary featherweight, his publicity knack has made him a factor in French politics ever since.

British Scientists Study Mechanisms Of Pain

By Peter Mosley

LONDON

The mechanisms of pain -- and how to stop it -- are yielding some of their mysteries at last.

But it seems that here, as with most other systems of the body, things are very much more complicated than anyone had suspected.

How, for instance, can one explain why of the hundreds of soldiers badly wounded at the battle of Anzio only one in five admitted when asked that they were feeling pain? Or why those soldiers were to quick to shout when an injection was ineptly administered?

And how about the Athletes who discover only after the game that they have broken a limb? Somehow they have switched off the pain and continued playing.

On the other hand there are those unfortunates for whom certain areas of the body are hypersensitive to pain. A feather brushed softly across their arm might cause them excruciating agony.

These examples and others were cited recently by Professor Patrick Wall, of the British Medical Research Council, in describing the latest findings of the councils cerebral functions research group at University College, London.

Using micro-electrodes to analyse the behavior of individual nerve cells, Dr. Wall and his team have uncovered a maze of different pathways through which pain is recorded and controlled.

First there are the fibres that carry the "pain received" message to the nerve cells. But there are also fibres which can negate that message, so that the cell cancels out the pain and does not transmit it to the brain.

Artificial stimulation of these "negative" fibres halts the pain reaction.

The cells are also strongly influenced, however, by impulses from the brain which say whether or not it wants to receive that pain message. There may also be pathways from the brain that are used to excite the nerve cells, according to Dr. Wall.

It is believed that morphine acts by stimulating one of these descending pathways from the brain.

Growing understanding of the whole mechanism, called "gate control," has already led to significant advances in the development of pain-killing treatments.

One method used in trials for instance, that "Martini," the ubiquitous American cocktail of gin and vermouth, if ordered in a British Pub -- "Bar," translates Schur -- will summon a glass of straight vermouth. "Weather it is dry or sweet will depend upon chance, but in either event it will be warm," Schur writes.

"A gin and it (it being an abbreviation for Italian vermouth) is still occasionally ordered and shouldn't be," Schur warns in conclusion.

In his compilation, the culmination of a life-long love of words, Schur shies away from neither the technical nor the embarrassing.

He tells fellow lawyers and the legally minded that the British term "Watching Brief" means much the same as "amicus Curiae Brief" means in an American courtroom. He also warns that the use of the harmless British "knock up" by an Englishman in the United States is "fraught with danger."

"In England knocking people up is a far less serious matter. All it means there is to wake people up," Schur writes.

Schur tells his readers,

South Africans Learn Lessons From Strikers

By Jeremy Toye

DURBAN

Strike action by thousands of Durban Africans may not have gained them massive rises nor entirely removed their discontent, but there are signs that South Africa has learned some lessons from their protests.

At one stage last week there were upwards of 30,000 municipal employees bowed to an ultimatum to accept a 15 percent increase of be sacked, did it collapse.

But the four weeks of work stoppages, beginning with a successful strike by brick workers, are not yet over and thousands of other black workers have scored small but significant victories.

The strike movement has brought the plight of black workers into the public eye and has underlined the urgent need for machinery to resolve industrial disputes and to provide a means for blacks who are not allowed to belong to trade unions to negotiate claims.

Prime Minister John Vorster told parliament the events in Durban contained "A valuable lesson for everybody in South Africa, including the (government) wage board, employers and workers."

"It would be foolish of them not to take this lesson to heart," he added.

The mayor of this eastern port, councillor Ron Williams, who distinguished himself with his cool handling of what could have been an explosive situation, has urged everyone involved to start consultations aimed at improving the lot of black workers and eliminating labor unrest. His call has been echoed by politicians, civic leaders, industrialists and white union leaders.

"In my opinion, it is outrageous for a company to pay its labor force five rand (seven U. S. dollars) a week," he said. "Who can be expected to live on that?"

Even with the increases won by strike action, many Africans will still have to try to live on not much more than five rand, and some of the strikers have gone back to work having gained nothing.

Others chalked up substantial increases, but a Durban newspaper found that the 18.50 rand (26 dollars) paid as a minimum weekly rate by Unilever was the highest offered in the city.

"The crisis is over - for the moment," Williams said, and his suspicions that the issue was not at an end were reflected in the uneasiness of several employers.

One said he suspected that selected strikes in certain industries might now become the pattern over the next few months, and could spread to other parts of the country.

Most of the recent strikes were confined to Durban and its surrounding towns.

This is mainly due to the fact that the black workers there are mainly Zulus, a closely knit group who tend to act en masse. In other South African cities, a wide mixture of tribal groups is employed and cohesion is less likely.

Some of the first strikers, such as the women in the Frame Textile Mills who

Chinese Highway Leads To Capitol

By Stephen Somerville

NORTH YEMEN

The rusted hulk of an Egyptian tank still hangs on a craggy mountainside next to the spectacular highway which climbs from the Red Sea port of Hodeida to Sanaa, capital of the Yemen Arab Republic.

Shell holes can be seen in the thick walls of some of the tall stone houses perched on outcrops of rock overlooking the road.

These are not the only visible signs of the devastating civil war which wracked North Yemen throughout most of the 1960's -- and in which this Chinese-built highway played a key strategic role.

For years it was the main supply route for the Egyptian forces which the late President Nasser sent to support the republicans after their coup d'etat against the monarchy in 1962.

With the decision early this year to close Sanaa Airport partially for enlargement work, the high way came into its own once more.

The only other practicable route to Sanaa is by air to Hodeida and then by taxi up to the capital, in the heart of the Arabian mountains.

Everyone travels by taxi, even the president, Kadh Abdul Rahman Al-Iryani, took one when he returned from an historic trip to Libya last November to sign a unity agreement with the neighboring peoples democratic republic of (south) Yemen.

Despite border skirmishes and occasional mines further south, the Hodeida - Sanaa road is generally peaceful. The only shots heard on a recent journey along it were being fired during a village wedding, while tribesmen brandishing daggers and rifles danced by the roadside.

The road soars in a breath-taking climb from sea-level to about 10,000 feet in 140 miles of dizzy hairpin turns and alarming precipices.

As you drive, the daytime temperature falls at this time of year from a sweltering 122 degrees Fahrenheit on the coast to about 48 degrees in Sanaa, or close to freezing at night.

The journey takes about four hours. The taxi fare now is about $35 -- either for one person alone, or as many as can cram into the car, usually an ancient Mercedes.

There is a good asphalt surface most of the way and the driver takes the curves with gusto, lurching over the abyss to pass gaily-painted trucks or slow-moving camel caravans.

Briticisms Star In New Book

By Lloyd Timelake

NEW YORK

A lawyer who divides his practice equally between the United States and Britain has recently published a book which might save an American from feeling insulted when his British friend inquires why he's "all done up like a dog's dinner."

The book, entitled "British Self-Taught (with comments in American)," defines "like a dog's dinner" (colloquial) as "dolloped up." An accompanying cartoon shows a befuddled gentleman, probably an American tourist, staring at a fur-draped blonde and imagining a dog eating an unappetizing dinner.

Norman Schur, a "lawyer" in the United States, "solicitor" when plying his trade in London, has compiled more than 5,000 such "Briticisms" over the past six years. Far from being a dull tome, his illustrated dictionary follows in the best tradition of Dr. Samuel Johnson's great dictionary, a tradition which allows for considerable editorial comment.

Schur tells his readers,

Sports Murray-Go-Round

By Tom Murray

LOTSA LAGNIAPPE

Not long ago Jack Gallagher, the Houston Post's answer to the barricada, wrote that college coaches who blame their setbacks on officiating are losers. Wonder if ol' Jack the Knife might expand that to include those syrupy, down-home University of Houston House Basketball Announcers Carl Mann and Carl Casper? Their carping at officials is endless. . . These kids keep making one older! Now comes John David Crow, Jr. to sign with Paul (Bear) Bryant, just as his famous Daddy did at Texas A&M in the winter of 1954. The Alabama Bear hopes Little John, an Ohio All-State running back, is a chip off the old block. Big John, now Cleveland Brown Backfield coach, became an Aggie All-American and Heisman Trophy winner before rambling to All-Pro at Chicago, St. Louis and San Francisco.

Those writing off Frank Broyles' Arkansas Razor-back football program, because of recent problems, are in for a rud shock. The Hog cupboard is far from bare and Frantic Frank is still one of the country's college coaching elite. Now that Broyles' temporary insanity (The Pro-Style offense) has run its course, Frank is returning to the type football on which he built his remarkable reputation: Rugged defense, conservative ball - control offense.

In case you doubt the emerging Arkansas comeback, listen to Jim Johnson, the defensive coach Broyles hired away from Oklahoma: "The spirit and determination of the Razor-backs (in off-season conditioning) reminds me of the spring of 1964." Johnson, then a defensive Arkansas lineman out of Port Arthur, alluded to a group of Razor-backs coming off a 5-5 '63 season who were getting ready to go on a 22-game winning streak and win two consecutive SWC championships.

Jim Murray, the Los Angeles syndicated columnist, makes an interesting revelation few in these parts recall. Most NFL fans recognize John Hadl as one of the better quarterbacks in professional football but hardly anyone realizes he never played the position until his senior year at Kansas.

How did that come about? Because Kansas, thanks to Bud Adams, ferried in Bert Coan from TCU. And, Pasadena Bert, 6-4 and 220 with 9.5 sprinters speed, took Hadl's halfback job away.

Coan, whom J. Murray called, "so fast they didn't catch his number in the first three games," may just still be the most talented running back ever spawned in the state of Texas.

QUICKIES:

Best Junior College basketball coach in Texas? Large order. But, keep an eye on Mike Hefley, the sharp, sharp young man who just led Baytown's Lee Rebels to a conference championship and has 'em mugging the likes San Jacinto, Tyler JC, etc. . . Texas Aggies keep being pumped up over Emory Bellard's new football recruits. Now comes Brazosport Sports Editor John Blatzer to call Aggie Prize Jim Dean, the Bluechip 245-pound tackle, "The greatest ever to come out of Brazosport." Considering King Hill, an All-America Rice Quarterback; Gene Shannon, an All-American U. of Houston running back and Danny Rhodes the great Arkansas linebacker all grew up and played their schoolboy football there at the mouth of the Brazos, you know this Dean is going to do more than sell sausage at Aggie land. . . You say it is natural that Flynn Bucy, the prized 6-3, 220-pound Son-of-a-Preacher-man, went for Grant Teaff's Baylor Baptists. Maybe so, but Flynn is the son of a Presbyterian Preacherman, out of LaMarque.

FTC To Check Food Prices

COLLEGE STATION

If the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) finalizes a plan to check food price data in 1973, food retailers who advertise the lowest prices in town had better be able to substantiate their claims.

Presently the FTC is still considering collecting food price data on an experimental basis. The surveys would be used to determine the validity of claims such as "lowest prices" and "discount prices."

Dr. William J. Vastine, economist specializing in marketing and food distribution for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, says that if they surveys are adopted, they will be conducted on a semi-monthly schedule. Each sample will consist of about 100 items.

"About half of the items will be used continuously in the samplings while the rest will be random samplings from a master list," Vastine explains. "Besides reporting item by item prices, the data would reveal high, low and average prices for a particular item."

The proposed plan calls for surveys of all food chains accounting for one percent or more of the total grocery sales in a standard metropolitan statistical area (SMSA). A SMSA is a community with a population of 50,000 or greater and integrated economy. An alternative method would be sampling the top 10 chains by volume in that area. Surveys would be made on whichever count yielded the smallest number of stores.

A corporation, partnership or sole proprietorship which exercises control over three or more locations in the SMSA will be classified as a chain.
